

My life as a Sphinx

I've sat here for thousands of years;
my paws immense as double-decker buses
stretched into sand as soft as crumble.
I guard the kings and queens in the pyramids
as well as jewels as shiny as glitter.
my body is a lion and my head is a powerful pharaoh,
my limestone body is battered by desert winds
as strong as a full-grown man lifting 10,000
weights.
I gaze up at night to spot constellations
but it is always lonely.
during the day tourists come from every part of the world
and ask "do you really tell riddles?"
I try moving my head up and down
but I am as still as stone.

My life as...

I'm Mia, sibling in-between.

They treat me like a queen!

One girl, two boys...

It's a house always full of noise!

Not the youngest, not the oldest.

But I'm probably the boldest!

I'm Mia in the middle.

Family life is such a riddle!
